

BREED LABELING DOGS OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

It is impossible to breed label or predict the behavior of dogs of unknown history and genetics solely on the basis of their appearance.

There is so much behavioral variability within each breed, and even more within breed mixes, that we cannot reliably predict a dog's behavior or his suitability for a particular adopter based on breed alone. Each dog is an individual.

We must take the lead and free ourselves from stereotypes that imply simple solutions to complex issues, in order to better serve our animals and society.
